Re: UNE Triennial Review, CC Docket Nos. 01-338, 96-98, 98-147;
Notice of Ex Parte Communications

Dear Ms. Dortch:

Today I had an ex parte meeting on behalf of Alaska Communications Systems Group, Inc., and its operating subsidiaries, ACS of Alaska, Inc., ACS of Anchorage, Inc., ACS of Fairbanks, Inc., and ACS of the Northland, Inc. (collectively "ACS"), concerning the above-captioned proceeding. I met with FCC Chief of Staff Marsha MacBride. The substance of our discussion is set forth in the enclosed slides and in ACS's January 16, 2003 ex parte letter filed in this proceeding on January 21st. Briefly, ACS is urging the Commission to amend its Part 51 rules and afford meaningful relief from unbundling requirements in Alaska, where competition already is fully developed. Such relief would be consistent with the D.C. Circuit's mandate in USTA v. FCC to conduct a more granular analysis of a competitor's "impairment" and eliminate unbundling obligations when they are no longer justified under Section 251(d)(2).¹ Please call me if you have any questions regarding this submission.

Respectfully submitted,

Karen Brinkmann

Enclosure

cc: Marsha J. MacBride, Chief of Staff
Office of the Chairman

Impact of Competition Will Be More Severe in Juneau and Fairbanks Annual Revenue Per Line 2001

Fairbanks and Juneau have over twice the amount of Access and USF revenue per line than Anchorage. As ACS loses a retail line to UNE competition, the Access and USF revenue is largely eliminated. The financial impact of competition in these smaller markets will be much more severe than has been experienced in Anchorage.

Per Line Revenue Losses are Significant

Total Competitive Markets are Experiencing Rapid Declines in Financial Returns

ACS Returns Cannot Attract Capital to Fund Losses

Competition in Alaska Local Markets Implications for the Future

- ACS was formed by acquiring predecessor organizations that were inefficient.
 - Since then ACS has reduced cost structure and is very efficient relative to other operators.
 - Very remarkable given Alaskan operating environment.
- Going forward ACS will not be able to avoid enough costs to offset the severe revenue losses that will be experienced in Juneau and Fairbanks.
- Implications for the financial health of the organization have largely been ignored by the regulators.
 - More pressing matters at the national level.
 - State policies favor the competitor.
- Deterioration of financial performance of ACS must be addressed:
 - Access to capital will be terminated.
 - ACS will have to stop investing in the network, perpetuating a cycle of deteriorating service and worsening financial results.
